CHAPTER I.

TWO incidents, widely different in character yet bound together by results, marked the night of Jan. 23. On that night the blackest fog within a four years' memory fell upon certain portions of London and also on that night came the first announcement of the border risings against the Persian government in the province of Khorassan—the announcement that, speculated upon, even smiled at, at the time, assumed such significance in the light of after events.

At 8 o'clock the news spread through the house of commons, but at 9 fog in the inner lobbies were gossiping, not so much upon how far Russia, while ostensibly upholding the shah, had pulled the strings by which the insurgents danced, as upon the manner in which the St. George's Gazette, the Tory evening newspaper, had seized upon the incident and shaken it in the faces of the government.

More than once before Lakely, the owner and editor of the St. George's, had stepped outside the decorous circle of tradition and taken a plunge into modern journalism, but tonight he essayed deeper waters than before and under an almost sensational heading declared that in this apparently innocent border rising we had less an outcome of mere racial antagonism than a first faint index of a long cherished Russian scheme, growing to a gradual maturity under the "drift" policy of the present British government.

The effect produced by this pronouncement, if strong, was varied. Members of the opposition saw, or thought they saw, a reflection of it in the smiling unconcern on the ministerial benches, and the government had an uneasy sense that behind the newly kindled interest on the other side of the house lay some mysterious scenting of battle from afar off. But though these impressions ran like electricity through the atmosphere, nothing tangible marked their passage, and the ordinary business of the house proceeded until half past 11, when an adjournment was moved.

The first man to hurry from his place was John Chilcote, member for East Wark. He passed out of the house quickly, with the half furtive quickness that marks a self conscious man, and as he passed the policeman standing stolidly under the arched doorway of the big courtyard he swerved a little, as if startled out of his thoughts. He realized his swerve almost before it was accomplished and pulled himself together with nervous irritability.

"Foggy night, constable," he said, with elaborate carelessness.

"Foggy night, sir, and thickening up west," responded the man.

"Ah, indeed!" Chilcote's answer was absent. The constable's cheery voice jarred on him, and for the second time he was conscious of senseless irritation. Without a further glance at the man, he slipped out into the courtyard and turned toward the main gate.

At the gateway two cab lamps showed through the mist of shifting fog like the eyes of a great cat, and the familiar "Hansom, sir?" came to him indistinctly.

He paused by force of custom and, stepping forward, had almost touched the open door when a new impulse caused him to draw back.

"No," he said hurriedly; "no. I'll walk."

The cabman muttered, lashed his horse and, with a clatter of hoofs and harness, wheeled away, while Chilcote, still with uncertain hastiness, crossed the road in the direction of Whitehall.

About the abbey the fog had partially lifted, and in the railed garden that faces the houses of parliament the statues were visible in a spectral way. But Chilcote's glance was unstable and indifferent. He skirted the railings heedlessly and, crossing the road with the speed of long familiarity, gained Whitehall on the left hand side.

There the fog had dropped, and, looking upward toward Trafalgar square, it seemed that the chain of lamps extended little farther than the Horse guards and that beyond lay nothing.

Unconscious of this capricious alternation between darkness and light, Chilcote continued his course. To a close observer the manner of his going had both interest and suggestion, for though he walked on, apparently self engrossed, yet at every dozen steps he started at some sound or some touch, like a man whose nervous system is painfully overstrung.

Maintaining his haste, he went deliberately forward, oblivious of the fact that at each step the curtain of darkness about him became closer, damper, more tangible; that at each second the passersby jostled each other with greater frequency. Then, abruptly, with a sudden realization of what had happened, he stood quite still. Without anticipation or preparation he had walked full into the thickness of the fog—a thickness so dense that, as by an enchanter's wand, the figures of a moment before melted, the street lamps were sucked up into the night.

His first feeling was a sense of panic at the sudden isolation, his second a thrill of nervous apprehension at the oblivion that had allowed him to be so entrapped. The second feeling outweighed the first. He moved forward, then paused again, uncertain of himself. Finally, with the consciousness that inaction was unbearable, he moved on once more, his eyes wide open, one hand thrust out as a protection and guide.

The fog had closed in behind him as heavily as in front, shutting off all possibility of retreat. All about him in the darkness was a confusion of voices—cheers, oaths, jubilons, alarmed or angry. Now and then a sleeve brushed his or a hand touched him tentatively. It was a strange moment, a moment of possibilities, to which the crunching wheels, the oaths and laughter from the blocked traffic of the roadway, made a continuous accompaniment.

Keeping well to the left Chilcote still beat on. There was a persistence in his movements that almost amounted to fear—a fear born of solitude filled with innumerable sounds. For a space he groped about him without result, then his fingers touched the cold surface of a shuttered shop front and a thrill of reassurance passed through him. With renewed haste and clinging to his landmark as a blind man might, he started forward with fresh impetus.

For a dozen paces he moved rapidly and unevenly, then the natural result occurred. He collided with a man coming in the opposite direction.

The shock was abrupt. Both men swore simultaneously, then both laughed. The sound jarred him.

"Was it drugs?" the stranger went on easily. "I have always had a theory that it was."

"Yes. It was morphia." The answer came before Chilcote had realized it. The woman's laugh at the stranger's quiet persistence had contrived to draw it from him. Instantly he had spoken he looked about him quickly, like one who has for a moment forgotten a necessary vigilance.

There was silence while the stranger thought over the information just given him. Then he spoke again, with a new touch of vehemence.

"So I imagined," he said. "though, on my soul, I never really credited it. To have gained so much and to have thrown it away for a common vice!" He made an exclamation of disgust.

Chilcote gave an unsteady laugh. "You judge hardly," he said.

The other repeated his sound of contempt. "Justly so. No man has the right to squander what another would give his soul for. It lessens the general respect for power."

"You are a believer in power?" The tone was sarcastic, but the sarcasm sounded thin.

"Yes. All power is the outcome of individuality, either past or present. I find no sentiment for the man who plays with it."

"Do you imagine that Lexington made no fight?" he asked impulsively. "Can't you picture the man's struggle while the vice that had been slave gradually became master?" He stopped to take breath, and in the cold pause that followed it seemed to him that the other made a murmur of incredulity.

"Perhaps you think of morphia as a pleasure?" he added. "Think of it, instead, as a tyrant that tortures the mind if held to and the body if cast off." Urged by the darkness and the silence of his companion, the rein of his speech had loosened. In that moment he was not Chilcote, the member for East Wark, whose moods and silences were proverbial, but Chilcote the man whose mind craved the relief of speech.

"You talk as the world talks—out of ignorance and self righteousness," he went on. "Before you condemn Lexington you should put yourself in his place"—

"As you do?" the other laughed.

Unsuspecting and inoffensive as the laugh was it startled Chilcote. With a sudden alarm he pulled himself up.

"I?" He tried to echo the laugh, but the attempt fell flat. "Oh, I merely speak from—from De Quincey. But I believe this fog is shifting—I really believe it is shifting. Can you oblige me with a light? I had almost forgotten that a man may still smoke though he has been deprived of sight." He spoke fast and disjointedly. He was overwhelmed by the idea that he had let himself go and possessed by the wish to obliterate the consequences. As he talked he fumbled for his cigarette case.

His head was bent as he searched for it nervously. Without looking up he was conscious that the cloud of fog that held him prisoner was lifting, rolling away, closing back again, preparatory to final disappearance. Having found the case, he put a cigarette between his lips and raised his hand at the moment that the stranger drew a match across his box.

For a second each stared blankly at the other's face, suddenly made visible by the lifting of the fog. The match in the stranger's hand burned down till it scorched his fingers, and, feeling the pain, he laughed and let it drop.

For a second each stared blankly at the other's face.

"Of all odd things!" he said. Then he broke off. The circumstance was too novel for ordinary remark.

(To Be Continued.)

Castes in India.

In India there are four main castes, the Brahmans being the highest and the Sudras the lowest. There are also many of no caste at all. These are termed Pariahs.

Cloves.

Cant.

Cant, meaning mock humility, took its name from the Rev. Andrew Cant, a minister in Aberdeenshire, who during the time of the Covenanters, was famed for his whining and pretending fervor.

PERILS OF SEAL HUNTING

PURSUIT ENGAGED IN BY MANY ADVENTUROUS CANADIANS.

Battling With Ice-Floes—Loss of Life Among Sealers—Two Hours' Deadly Work—After the "White Coats"—Profits Are Not Large In Proportion to Risk— Indians Frozen to Death.

Seal hunting in the St. Lawrence is a most adventurous occupation. The Newfoundland sealing steamer Greenland was recently lost, her crew narrowly escaping; and alarm is felt in consequence as to the fate of the Canadian sealers who are known to be at the present time battling with the ice-floes of the gulf. The severity of the past winter, the lateness of the present season and the accumulation of ice in the gulf indicate that the annual life and death struggle of the seal hunters is likely to be more protracted and perilous this year than usual.

While the Newfoundlanders go sealing in well equipped steamers, the Canadian sealers from the barren coast of eastern Labrador take their lives in their hands when they set sail from their homes to brave the dangers of the hunt in their little fishing schooners. A week or two should see them home again if they have good luck, but often they are caught in the ice and are absent from home several weeks at a time.

Caught in the Ice.

Not one of the schooners that set out last month from the north shore of the gulf after the seals has yet been heard from, and this does not necessarily spell death or disaster, when the character of the ice in the gulf at present is taken into consideration, bearing in mind the fact that some years ago a number of these schooners were caught in the ice and took from the month of March until the middle of June to reach open water in the vicinity of the Straits of Belle Isle.

Scarcely a season passes without loss of life among the sealers. In the vicinity of Anticosti some time ago a sealing schooner came across a herd of seals on an ice-floe, and after killing several one of the crew noticed a black object on another floe about a mile distant.

The captain brought the glass to bear upon it and saw that besides being motionless it was far too large for any animal that frequents that gulf. When the object was reached and examined it proved to consist of the bodies of two Indians and two squaws, huddled together and half covered with snow.

They were frozen fast together, stone dead, on the ice side of a small mound of ice which they had collected to shelter them from the bitter wind. No doubt they had been blown off the shore while hunting on the Labrador ice, and had drifted hither and thither in the gulf, until all hope was lost and Indianlike, they had huddled together.

Many others have lost their lives in the attempt to leap over the spaces between floes of breaking up ice fields.

Two Hours' Work.

The amount of seal life destroyed by the Labrador hunters does not begin to compare with the result of the Newfoundland hunt. Nevertheless a crew of eight men have been known to kill five or six hundred seals in a couple of hours.

Much depends upon the opportunity offered of taking the animals by surprise. When a large herd is seen upon an ice field, the men, who usually number from eight to twelve on a schooner, take a small boat and get as near as possible to the part of the ice-floe where the seals are basking, especially if that is the side nearest to the water.

If still unperceived, they crawl upon their hands and knees and, spare no efforts to get close up to the herd without being seen. Then the slaughter begins.

Stunned and Disabled.

Each man is armed with a stout stick, six to ten feet long, and seal after seal is struck on the nose with the weapon. A slight blow suffices to fracture the skull and kill the young animals, and many of the others are stunned and disabled, while the hunters hurry on to stun as many more of the herd as possible before they can make their escape into the open water.

Then the hunters' knives are produced. The skin with the adhering fat is rapidly detached from the carcass, which is left on the ice. The ice is soon stained with blood and dotted with the skinless carcasses of the slain.

The great aim of the hunters is to get among the "white coats," as the young harp seals are called in their babyhood, when yet fed by their mother's milk and while they are powerless to escape. The oil then extracted from the blubber is of a much finer quality than that obtained from the full-grown seals.

Harp and Hood Seals.

These ordinary seals of the gulf, commonly known as harp or Greenland seals, are perfectly defenceless. Not so, however, the hood seal, which is frequently met with by others.

The reward of all the perils undergone is very small. The members of a crew divide their profits equally, and they can rarely make more than $200 for the season, though formerly the average was at least $400. Seal oil, which was formerly worth 90 cents a gallon, now sells at from 36 to 38 cents, and there has also been a falling off in the value of skins, which are chiefly made into leather and are worth about a dollar apiece.

Their gray or pepper and salt colored fur is by no means unsightly, and they may become more valuable soon, as some have recently been made up into winter overcoats, which retail in Quebec for about $50, or one-tenth the price of Alaska seal.

Hadn't Built An Ark.

"Have you anything put aside for a rainy day?"

"No; I'm no Noah."

OUR MANNERISMS.

Traits We Own That Are Annoying to Our Friends.

It may be only a way of speaking, a way of looking or some little mannerism that offends.

Of course one doesn't always realize the results caused by doing things "our way," but that doesn't excuse us.

Think out how you look when you tell something disagreeable which is unnecessary and uncalled for.

Think out if often you don't try the patience of your friends with a continued history of your ways and weakness and whether, after awhile, it does not take the form of nagging.

And even from those we love nagging is something very difficult to bear. A great sin is often forgotten, but these continual little annoyances, these continual disagreeable mannerisms and the insisting of doing things always in your own way, these little "queernesses," are just as wrong as the greater sins of people who have greater temptations.

Many a boy has drifted from home and happiness on account of a nagging, suspicious mother, his future ruined.

Who is to blame?

Many a girl has turned down the prince and army of vice for lack of some kind little word of appreciation. Some sickening influence has often driven far apart those who should be very near together.

It may not be "your way" to speak these little words of appreciation or to do the considerate, helpful, aspiring things.

But is that an excuse?

Why not cultivate it?

Don't you think your ways and little queernesses are just as wrong as the greater sins of people who daily have to meet the greater temptations?

A CROCHETED RATTLE.

Pretty and Harmless Plaything For the Baby.

Cast on fifteen stitches, first row plain, second row purl, third row plain, fourth row purl, fifth row purl, sixth row plain, seventh row purl and eighth row plain. Repeat these eight rows until twelve ribs are worked. Now put ten stitches on the third needle and work twenty-four ribs on the remaining five stitches and cast off, dropping the middle stitch and letting it run the whole way down the strip of work. This forms holes through which the ribbon is run. With the ten stitches left on the third needle do two strips in the same way.

Sew the ring on the end of center strip and a bell on each of the others. Run a piece of ribbon into each strip and tie into pretty bows at the ends. Tie a bow of ribbon at the end of broad piece of knitting, with two bells on the loops. Finish off at the top with a bow of ribbon a little wider and sew a safety pin on the back to fix to the baby's dress.

Dinner Desserts.

Spanish Cream.—One-half box of gelatin, one quart of milk, the yolks of three eggs, one small cup of sugar. Soak the gelatin in the milk for an hour, then put it on the fire and stir well as it heats. Beat the yolks lightly with the sugar. Add to milk and heat to the boiling point, stirring all the time. Strain into a mold and flavor with vanilla.

Trifle.—Take stale cake, cut in small split squares, put whipped cream between and layer of preserved fruit over the top. Cover with cream and fruit. Served with preserved raspberries it is delicious.

Marshmallow Confection. — One-half pound of English walnuts chopped fine and added to a pound of marshmallows cut up. Mix these together. Take a pint of cream and whip it until stiff. Stir into it the nuts and marshmallows; also a quarter of a cup of candied cherries chopped fine. Flavor with a few drops of vanilla. Set on the ice an hour or two before serving.

A Hint to the Cook.

When making pastry, leave the edges quite untouched. The air in the paste causes the flakes, so it must not be pressed out. This rule holds good when making all kinds of pastry.

LINGERIE SUGGESTION.

A Charming and Easily Made Swiss Corset Cover.

Embroidered lingerie, especially corset covers, appeal to all women, but comparatively few can afford to buy them at the exorbitant prices charged for handiwork in the shops. Even if one can do the work herself, not all women can give the time necessary to the completion of the ordinary type of embroidered corset cover, with its fine satin stitch and eyelet work.

A very dainty and attractive underwaist, however, can be made with comparatively little work from dotted swiss, with certain of its dots covered with mercerized cottons.

Choose a swiss with large coin dots and cut it so that the corset cover either opens in the back or else is round in front, with pointed pieces in the back that fold in a surplice effect and are brought around to the front of the waist, where they are fastened under a small bow.

Embroider the dots so they form a pointed effect, broad at the shoulders and ending in a point a little below the bust line. This will probably require about four lines of dots to be covered. Use the dots of the material as a padding and work over them in satin stitch, running the threads in the opposite direction. Use a mercerized cotton.

If one cares for color in her underwear, these dots are very attractive done in pale pink, blue or lavender, but they are equally good and wash better in all white.

Finish the edge of the corset cover in a narrow lace beading and an edging of half inch wide valenciennes lace. Run baby ribbon to match the dots through the beading and have a broader ribbon of the same shade at the waist to draw in the fullness.

These little corset covers are both pretty and have very little work in comparison with their real effectiveness.

MINOR INJURIES.

The Proper Way to Treat Cuts and Bruises.

There are no external applications, such as ointment, liniments or lotions, that will or can "heal" a wound. Nature alone does this, and she can do it in the least possible time when her methods are not retarded.

If a cut or laceration is made with a clean instrument, it is best to dress the wound without even washing off the exuding blood. If the injury was caused by anything not clean or if any foreign matter be present and a suspicion of infection exists, of course the injured surface should be thoroughly cleansed. In the absence of an antiseptic solution plain hot water may be used and the particles of dirt or grit removed with a new needle or wooden toothpick, says Mother's Magazine.

The healing of wounds is often materially interfered with by the application of useless or injurious "remedies" or inattention in the disturbance or changing of dressings. If a wound is perfectly clean and the edges correctly brought together, the only way nature can be assisted is by keeping it so. However, it is sometimes not only advisable, but necessary, to make an application of some kind to relieve severe pain, particularly in children and nervous subjects, and a splendid preparation for this purpose is prepared by rubbing together equal parts of pure carbolic acid crystals and gum camphor till an oily liquid is formed, after which twice the quantity of sweet oil is added. The mixture is nonirritating, antiseptic and is good for any injury, burns and scalds included, that is liable to happen in a family.

It should be kept in a tightly corked bottle and is always ready for use.

TOILET HINTS.

A tiny sore at the corner of the lips should be at once well powdered with boracic acid powder and kept covered with it until it disappears.

A red nose is much benefited by bathing in really hot water night and morning. Dry very thoroughly afterward, more especially in the morning if the weather is cold.

A little olive oil, if gently rubbed on any irritating spot, will generally allay the irritation. Eczema spots, which sometimes appear in cold weather, soon disappear if treated with it.

For a corn a vinegar bread poultice soon effects a cure. Steep a little bread in vinegar for two or three hours, make a poultice, bind on the corn at night and keep on till the morning. After one or two nights' treatment the corn will drop out.

After doing dirty work do not at once wash the hands in water. First rub a little grease well into the skin, more especially the dirty parts. Mutton fat is excellent. Then wash in the usual way. The grease loosens the dirt, and hands treated in this way will never become ingrained with dirt.

A Sewing Lesson.

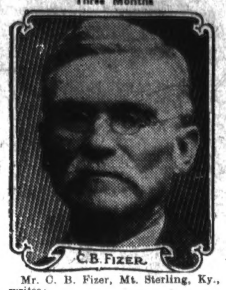

To apply insertions by machine baste the lace on the material; then run a row of machine stitching as close to the edge as is possible. Cut the goods from under the insertion, leaving sufficient edge to turn back and sew down.

Bloomer trousers may be finished without the rubber at the knee, to which many mothers object on account of its interfering with the circulation. As a substitute a narrow band may be used as a finish, and into it a short fitted lining and the full Bloomer should be stitched.

For children from two to four years of age the animal plushes make serviceable and warm winter coats. Perhaps the most popular of these materials is the bearskin, which comes in a number of different colors.

KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Suffered Two Years—Relieved in Three Months

Mr. C. B. Fizer, Mt. Sterling, Ky., writes:

"I have suffered with kidney and bladder trouble for ten years past.

"Last March I commenced using Peruna and continued for three months. I have not used it since, nor have I felt a pain.

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna."

Peruna for Kidney Trouble

Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Ontario, Can., writes:

"I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble, and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time.

"This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna and Manalin.

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin, and now I feel better than I have for some time.

"I feel that Peruna and Manalin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna."

It is the business of the kidneys to remove from the blood all poisonous materials. They must be active all the time, else the system suffers. There are times when they need a little assistance.

Peruna is exactly this sort of a remedy. It has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

CHILDHOOD AILMENTS

The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the home has a feeling of security that her child's health is safe. These Tablets cure such ailments as colic, indigestion, constipation, diarrhoea and simple fevers. They break up colds, destroy worms, make teething painless and give the child healthy, natural sleep. And the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that the Tablets are absolutely safe. Mrs. Robert Watson, Combermere, Ont., says: "I find Baby's Own Tablets just the medicine needed to keep children healthy." Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To Know Is to Prevent—If the miners who work in cold water most of the day would rub their feet and legs with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil they would escape muscular rheumatism and render their nether limbs proof against the ill effects of exposure to the cold. Minard's Liniment, Lumberman's Friend

The composer Rossini was a great eater. He went one day into a restaurant and ordered dinner for three. After awhile the waiter said: "The dinner is on the fire, sir; when the people come it is ready."

Where is Your Hair?

Is your comb? Why so? Is not the head a much better place for it? Better keep what is left where it belongs! Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, quickly stops falling hair. There is not a particle of doubt about it. We speak very positively about this, for we know.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Ayer's

Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

Indeed, the one great leading feature of our new Hair Vigor may well be said to be this—it stops falling hair. Then it goes one step further—it aids nature in restoring the hair and scalp to a healthy condition. Ask for "the new kind."

DOCKYARDS IN BRITAIN.

Keyham Now Occupies First Position as Naval Stronghold.

The dockyard extension at Keyham marks a new development in the history of the western port which places it in the foremost rank of Great Britain's naval strongholds. The enlargement of the twin establishments at Devonport and Keyham, which is now officially known as the North Yard, has brought into existence two new large basins, three double docks and a single one. The work has been in hand exactly eleven years.

Devonport the Old.

The history of Devonport, which, prior to 1824, was called Plymouth, goes back to the days of hemp and canvas. Keyham was founded as an outcome of the modern steam navy. It was to the foresight of Lord Auckland that the prompt introduction of a new yard was due. This was in 1846, four years after the steam frigate Firebrand had marked a first stage in the revolution in the propulsion of warships. As at first planned, Keyham had two large basins and three docks, and it was mostly used as a repairing yard. It was also the training ground of our young engineer officers before the amalgamation scheme for the training and education of officers in 1902 swept away the different branches, and brought all the cadets together at Osborne for common training.

Keyham, the New.

By the completion of the Keyham Extension Works, as the new undertaking was first called, the old and the new are welded into one. Devonport remains the name of the yard, but Keyham is the spirit of it — the spirit of machinery and engines, of vast complicated boxes of steel and brass, in which our seaman of the future will move as familiarly as his forefathers moved among spars and ropes.

SWETTENHAM'S SUCCESSOR.

Mr. Sydney Olivier Is Highly Popular With the Jamaicans.

Mr. Sydney Olivier, who succeeds Sir J. Alexander Swettenham as Governor of Jamaica, is highly popular with the Jamaicans, and enjoys their confidence in a marked degree. From 1899 to 1904 he was Colonial Secretary in Jamaica, and during three years of that period he was acting Governor of the colony. So greatly were his services esteemed that when, following the calamitous earthquake that destroyed Kingston recently, Sir Alexander Swettenham asked for permission to retire, there was a unanimous wish on the part of the press and the people that Mr. Olivier should receive the post. In the quarter of a century during which he has been associated with the Colonial Office Mr. Olivier has filled various positions connected with the West Indian colonies, and has undertaken several important missions, one of which was as secretary to the late Field Marshal Sir Henry Norman's Royal Commission on the West Indies. In 1890-91 he was colonial Secretary of British Honduras, in 1895-6 Auditor-General of the Leeward Islands, and in 1898 was sent to Washington to assist in reciprocity negotiations on behalf of the West Indian colonies. Apart from his distinguished services as a colonial statesman, Mr. Olivier is a writer of graceful verse and prose. In 1881 he published a volume of "Poems and Parodies," but his work in prose has been confined to brilliant essays and magazine articles on Socialism, economics and art. He has been from the beginning one of the leading lights of the Fabian Society, and was its secretary from 1886 to 1890. He was one of the contributors, with Mr. George Bernard Shaw and others, to the famous Fabian essays, which represent, perhaps, the greatest effort of the society in the popularization of Socialism.

Girl Masquerades as Boy.

A remarkable story of a girl who was induced by her mother to masquerade as an errand boy in order to rob her employer was told at the Liverpool, Eng., Police Court recently. Emily Barnes, an intelligent girl of fifteen, said that after conversation with her mother she dressed up as a boy some months ago, and obtained work running errands. A few weeks ago, under the name of "Harold Barnes" she found employment in the shop of Mr. Jacobus. Noticing where the money was kept she hid one night in the cellar. In the early hours of the following morning, she broke open the till with an axe and stole £4, subsequently giving the money to her mother. Suspicion, however, fell upon the supposed boy, and she was charged at the Police Court without her real sex being discovered. She was only when remanded to the workhouse that she confessed to being a girl.

New Cruiser Launched.

The British armored cruiser Invincible was launched last week from the Elswick shipyard, Newcastle.

She is one of the trio of largest cruisers in the world, of which the first, the Indomitable, was launched March 16.

Under the admiralty order the greatest secrecy was observed, in order to prevent any details regarding the new warship leaking out.

Her dimensions are the same as those of the Indomitable, namely, she is 17,250 tons, is 530 feet long, exceeding the older armored cruisers by 50 feet; has turbine engines and is expected to attain the high speed of 25 knots an hour.

The armament of these three cruisers includes eight 12-inch guns, almost equaling the main battery of the Dreadnought.

King's Cane Collection.

King Edward is a diligent collector of walking sticks, match-boxes, caricatures, and model ships. His collection of canes numbers nearly 2,000, and most of these have remarkable associations. A stick highly prized by the King is one used by Queen Victoria in her closing years. It is made from a portion of the oak in whose boughs Charles I. concealed himself after his defeat by Cromwell at Worcester.

HON. C. W. ROBINSON

Director of Record Foundry Co.

Hon. C. W. Robinson, until recently Speaker of the New Brunswick Legislature, and who, a few weeks ago, was sworn in a member of Premier Pugsley's Cabinet, is, outside of his political interests, associated with some of the largest manufacturing concerns in his Province.

Among the principal interests with which Hon. Mr. Robinson is connected is the Record Foundry and Machine Co., of Moncton, N.B., and Montreal, P.Q., manufacturers of the celebrated "Penn Esther" ranges and "Admiral" and "Calorific" furnaces. In this company, Hon. Mr. Robinson is a large stockholder and a director.

An Accommodating Peg

One of the disadvantages of modern shoemaking is that the peg won't fit itself into the hole. Time was, according to Mayor E. F. Brown of Marlboro, when it was much more accommodating.

"One day," he recently informed the Boot and Shoe club, "my father, a pioneer in the business, hit the peg and it flew up. What happened? Probably you won't believe me, but it's a fact all the same. The peg hit the ceiling, came down exactly into the hole, and was driven in. But, you know," added Mayor Brown, with a smile, "we don't peg shoes that way nowadays."—Boston Herald.

Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is a speedy cure for dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, summer complaint, sea sickness and complaints incidental to children teething. It gives immediate relief to those suffering from the effects of indiscretion in eating unripe fruit, cucumbers, etc. It acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails to conquer the disease. No one need fear cholera if they have a bottle of this medicine convenient.

Bill Nye and Maartens

The presence in this country of the distinguished Dutch novelist, Maarten Maartens, recalls the story of his election in the spring of 1895 as an honorary member of the Authors club of New York.

When the name Joost Marius M. van der Poorten-Schwartz came to the attention of the membership committee there was a gasp of astonishment.

Finally the late Bill Nye came to the rescue with the suggestion that the first half of the name should be voted on at once, but that the last half should be held over until the autumn, when the weather would be cool.—Bookman.

An old negro entered an Eighth avenue drug store the other day and looked about him doubtfully.

"Something you want, old man?" inquired the clerk, stepping up.

"Yaas, sah; yaas, sah," was his reply, as he scratched his chin; but I disremembahs 'zactly what——"

"Forgot what you came for?" broke in the clerk.

"Dass des edzackly hit, sah; dass des hit!" exclaimed the old negro, his face lighting up with relief. "Er nickul's wuth, sah."

The clerk stared for a moment, then grinned understandingly, and handed the old negro his desired five cents' worth of "camephor."

THE SOMERSAULT CAR.

Automobile That Turns Completely Over In Midair.

Whatever may be thought of the American somersaulting motor car as a public performance, it is certainly a triumph of scientific mechanics. The car, moving down a steeply inclined track, attains a velocity of twenty-eight miles an hour. Leaving the track at the base of the incline, it is shot into the air and turns a complete somersault before reaching a platform some feet off. The arrangements by which this remarkable feat is achieved are notable for their simplicity. The necessary gyrating impulse is given to the car as it reaches the base of the incline by the arrangement of the guiding rails in relation to the track itself. On the incline, which starts at a height of fifty feet from the ground, are a pair of broad tracks for the wheels of the car, and between these a pair of guide rails. The car is kept to these rails by four ball bearing rollers, two in front and two behind. The former press the sides of the rails, while the latter run in grooves on the tops of the same. This arrangement, combined with the sharp upward turn of the rails at the base of the incline, gives the car the necessary twisting impulse just as it leaps into the air, for the front wheels of the car remain on the track, while the hind ones are tilted up by the back rollers, which run on the top of the rails. As the center of gravity of the car describes a parabola in the air the car itself turns a slow somersault, moving through 40 degrees for every two feet horizontal advance. Having turned completely round, it still has to thus advanced nine feet, and a collapsible platform is placed at this distance to receive it. The car lands on this in a horizontal position, the force of the impact being taken up by the springs, and runs off it for some thirty or forty feet. The success of the affair consists in the careful adjustment of the pitch of the rails in relation to that of the track. The car must land on the platform all four wheels at once; otherwise, as has been shown by actual occurrence, the wheels first touching will be crushed and the car damaged.—London Globe.

Hotel Where Charlotte Corday Stopped.

A good deal of old Paris is disappearing just now, and among the latest bits of the antique city to be threatened is the little spot upon which Charlotte Corday found a fleeting place of rest as she entered the city on her errand of death. It stands on the street which prior to the days of the revolution had been known as that of the Vieux Augustins. It now is the Rue d'Argout. The building is the Hotel de la Providence. Charlotte arrived in Paris from Caen on July 9, 1793, slept at the hotel on that and the following night and on the morning of the 11th walked quietly out of it to slay the monster Marat. The bedroom is still pointed out which the Norman heroine occupied, and some regret is felt that the place has to be demolished. But the march of progress is merciless. The buildings are needed to extend the Rue du Louvre, and soon human feet will tramp on the spot where the Norman heroine slept her last calm sleep of maiden freedom.

Saving a Hen's Life.

There have been nearly 6,000 cases of suffering animals, from an injured cab horse to a consumptive lizard, treated at the animals' hospital in Westminster, London, the last nine months. One of the latest inmates is a two-year-old hen which is suffering from a peculiar disease in the crop. The hen in the hospital is the last one of a family of nine, the others having died from the same disease. A unique operation is being resorted to by the doctor to save the hen's life. Every day a rubber tube is inserted in the bird's mouth, and its crop is filled with warm water. Then the hen is turned upside down, and the water is allowed to trickle out.

A Violin of Matches.

Karl Wagner, an upholsterer living at Munich, has constructed a violin entirely out of wooden matches. The instrument has a good tone, and the back is ornamented by a picture of the tower of the famous Frauenkirche. Wagner first made a model of the parts in cardboard and then glued over them the matches, which are perfectly joined. The cardboard was then removed and the parts put together. Ten boxes of matches supplied the necessary wood, and Wagner was engaged for a year on the work. He has presented the violin to his son, who is a promising musician.

Three Points For Home Gardeners.

There are three important points for the amateur to remember in raising flowers from seed for the decoration of the home garden—namely: To select the good and well known kinds that grow most easily and to leave the "novelties" alone; to purchase the best seeds, from reliable seed firms only; to plant them in well prepared soil, at the proper depth and at the right season. And, adds the Good Housekeeping botanist, don't count much on freak or "sport" plants, so long as you can get pansies, sinuias, asters and the other old reliables.

Scrimped For Sweet Charity.

America is not the only nation whose rich men give bountifully to public works. A French Jew has bequeathed 50,000,000 francs to public institutions, half of it to the Pasteur Institute. His account of himself was touching and simple: "They say I have been miserly. They poke fun at my greed. What do I care? It pleases me to reflect that that greed will benefit the wretched and that, after all, it is for them I have worked."

The Scheme That Failed

A report comes from Kansas that a thrifty broom manufacturer has made an attempt to collect old broom handles and use them again. The women to whom the half-new brooms were offered rejected them. They insisted on bright, new handles. These are made of maple, and sell for about $27 a thousand.

In a small town in Pennsylvania are two brothers who are engaged in the retail coal business. A noted evangelist visited the town and the elder brother was converted.

For weeks after his conversion he endeavored to persuade his brother to join the church. One day he said to him:

"Why can't you, Richard, join the church as I did?"

"It's all right for you to be a member of the church," replied Richard, "but if I join who's going to weigh the coal?"

As an example of what men in the railroad business have to endure, a conductor on the Seaboard Air Line relates that while he was passing through a coach a few days ago a woman stopped him and asked him how far they were from Weldon. He replied that they were about 55 miles from Weldon. She then asked: "This side or the other side?"—Argonaut.

VALUABLE MEDICAL PRESCRIPTION

The following very valuable prescription, by an eminent and successful physician, will be appreciated by many who are suffering from la grippe, cold, cough, pneumonia, or any throat, lung or stomach trouble, or run-down system, as it is a certain cure, and will save many a doctor's bill. It is almost a certain preventive as well:—

"When you feel that you are taking cold or have chilly feeling or aching in any part of the body or head, or feel weak, tired, dizzy, unfit for work, pain in the head or back of the neck, do not neglect these dangerous symptoms, but send immediately to your druggist and get a bottle of Psychine (pronounced Si-keen), and prepare as follows:

"Psychine, 2 teaspoonfuls.

"Sherry, whisky or water, 2 teaspoonfuls.

"Choice of the latter can be made according to the judgment and preference of the patient.

"Mix thoroughly and take regularly before each meal and at bedtime."

This prescription has been used in thousands of cases and has been so universally successful that a number of leading physicians regularly prescribe Psychine in their practice for any of the above troubles, or any run-down, wasting or constitutional difficulty. It is the most reliable and valuable home remedy. It tones up the entire system, giving a feeling of youthfulness and vigor, adding many years to the life of those who use it.

"Years ago I was almost a physical wreck and was suffering with lung troubles. Friends and neighbors thought I would never get better. I began to despair myself. Losing faith in my physician, I procured another one who recommended the use of PSYCHINE. It was surprising beyond description the effect it had. I seemed to gain with every dose. Inside of two weeks I was able to attend to my housework again. There are no symptoms of consumption about me now."

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either Dyspepsia, the Heart or the Kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the RESULT of your ailment, and not the CAUSE. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me to-day for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by Lacombe Drug Co.

Started Fire With Kerosene—Usual Result.

Toronto, June 21.—Three people were seriously burned this morning, and two of them may die. Mrs. Mills, who lives at Sutton, was pouring coal oil into the stove because it was not burning quickly enough. In a minute there was an explosion, and her clothing caught fire. Her screams attracted her seventeen months' old baby, who ran to her and its clothes set on fire. Her husband was lying sick in bed with rheumatism and he jumped up and grabbed the baby, setting his own clothes on fire and getting badly burned. The mother and child may die, but the husband's burns are not so serious. This is the second experience that Mrs. Mills has had with coal oil and a lighted stove. Neighbors say that the explosion shook the house.

Doctors Change Their Methods.

Years ago they fought catarrh by internal dosing. They saw this ruined the stomach and changed to the ozonated air cure, better known as "Catarrhozone" This treatment is sure to cure. It goes to the source of the disease; it destroys the causes that maintain catarrh and even in the worst cases permanent cure is guaranteed. Failure with Catarrhozone is impossible. Antiseptic, healing and far-reaching, it's bound to cure every time. Endorsed by more than twenty thousand physicians in America alone and sold in 25c and $1.00 sizes by all dealers.

Suicide Near Red Deer.

Red Deer, Alta., June 28.—A German named Chris Veogt, employed chopping timber about eight miles east of Red Deer, committed suicide by placing the muzzle of his gun next his head and pulling the trigger with his foot. He was found by his companions about eight hours after the shooting. He was lying on the bed in the shack with the gun by his side. He was in town on Saturday last and was said to be under the influence of liquor. Coroner Collison held an inquest this afternoon and the verdict of suicide was returned by the jury.

Murder Will Out.

St. Paul, June 21.—Two years ago Annie Kinlop, a young woman, was assaulted and murdered near Randall, Minn. In the struggle she stabbed her assailant with a hat pin, which was broken. No clew was obtained to the murderer until a young man just operated upon at Little Falls for appendicitis was found to have in his abdomen pieces of a hat pin. When he recovers he will be arrested on the charge of murder.

Piles get quick and certain relief from Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Please note it is made alone for Piles, and its action is positive and certain. Itching, painful, protruding or blind piles disappear like magic by its use. Large nickel-capped glass jars 50 cents. Sold by Lacombe Drug Co.

Does Your Heart Flutter?

You know heart fluttering means you're not as well as you should be. It's an evidence of impaired nerve and muscular power. To obtain cure, try Ferrozone; it has a special action on the heart seen in the case of Thos. Grover of Cole Harbor, N. S., who says: "If I exerted myself it would bring palpitation. To carry any heavy weight or go quickly upstairs completely knocked me out. When bad attaks came on I lived in fear of sudden death. Ferrozone gave my heart the very assistance it needed, and now I am quite well." For heart or nerves it's hard to excel Ferrozone, 50c per box at all dealers.

Household Hints.

Cleaning Wall Paper.—Soiled wall paper can be cleaned upon the wall without injuring the most delicate or highly-colored. Dip a whitewash brush in hot vinegar and brush all over it very quickly, but thoroughly. You will be surprised to see how dirty the vinegar becomes. When dry, the paper will be fresh and clean as if newly laid.

Removing Paint from Windows.—With a sponge or bit of cloth, put on hot vinegar two or three times in quick succession; then scrape with a putty-knife, and it will all come off.—Willetta Preston, Danville, Vt., in Home Department, National Magazine for June.

Why Chest Colds are Dangerous.

They lead to pleurisy and pneumonia. Follow the advice of W. H. Powles of Powles' Corners, Ont., who says: "I used to be subject to attacks and although I used most everything nothing relieved quickly till I discovered Nerviline. I have used it for pleurisy and sore chest and found it just the proper thing. For Lumbago or Neuralgia it's quick as lighting. I cheerfully recommend Nerviline." Strongest, cleanest, most pain destroying liniment on earth is Polson's Nerviline, 25c bottles sold everywhere.

A MAGISTRATE INVESTIGATES ZAM-BUK

SAYS IS A WONDERFUL HEALER AND DOES MORE THAN IS CLAIMED FOR IT

Probably no household remedy in existence has won such glowing tributes from people in high places as has Zam-Buk. Mr. Roger F. Perry, Justice of the Peace for British Columbia, recently tested this famous balm, and this is what he says of it:

"The Pavilion,
"Goldfields; B.C.

"To the Zam-Buk Co.

"Gentlemen—After a very fair trial I have proved Zam-Buk eminently satisfactory. In my case it cured a skin rash of five years standing which no doctor had been able to do any good for.

"I would certainly encourage any person to keep Zam-Buk in their home. It truly does even more than you claim for it. For my own part I would not now be without it in the house. Yours very truly,

(Signed) "Roger F. Perry,
"Justice of the Peace for B.C."

Zam-Buk differs from ordinary salves and embrocations, for while these mostly contain animal oils and fat, Zam-Buk is purely herbal. It closes and heals cuts, festering sores, ulcers, eruptions, boils, eczema, chafing sores, etc. In the household it is the handiest possible remedy for burns, scalds, children's injuries. It instantly cleanses any wound to which it is applied; prevents festering, inflammation or blood poisoning. It cures piles, varicose ulcers and fistula. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes for $2.50.

Difficulty Not the Problem

Emanuel Lasker, the chess expert, was discussing the ethics of a certain style of play.

"Well," he ended, laughing, "I suppose it is all right, but it is intricate, eh? It is like the subject discussed in the debating society, 'Is it wrong to cheat a lawyer?'

"The decision, after three hours' argument, was:

"'Not wrong, but too difficult to pay for the trouble.'"—Buffalo Enquirer.

CRIPPLED BY SCIATICA

Made Well and Strong by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills After Doctors Had Failed

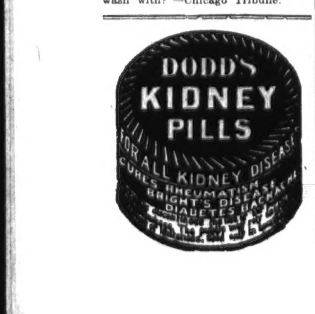

Mr. H. W. Awalt is one of the leading merchants of Hemford, N. S. A few years ago he was a great sufferer from that most excruciating trouble, sciatica. He says: "At the time I was afflicted I was living at Baker Settlement. The attack was so severe that I had been off work for some time. The cords of my leg were all drawn up and I could only limp with the aid of a stick. The pain I suffered was terrible. I was in misery both day and night. Every moment caused me such pain as only those who have been tortured with sciatica can know. I was treated by several doctors, but they did not help me a bit. In fact I almost began to feel that my condition was helpless, when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention. I got a half dozen boxes. I had used about the entire quantity before I found any benefit. But I was encouraged and got a second half dozen boxes, and before these were all gone every vestige of the trouble had disappeared. Not only this, but I was improved in health in every way, as it will be readily understood that the long siege of pain I had suffered had left me badly run down. I can't speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I can't recommend them too strongly to other sufferers."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure sciatica simply because they make the rich, red blood that soothes and strengthens the jangled, aching nerves. That is why they cure such nerve troubles as neuralgia, St. Vitus dance and partial paralysis. That is why they cure all ailments due to poor, watery blood. That is why they make weary, despondent, broken-down men and women bright, active and strong. But only the genuine pills can do this, and they have the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, on the wrapper around every box. Sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE COLD BATH.

Many Men Say They Like It, but They Don't Like It.

In a paper read at a meeting of an association for the study of tuberculosis an eminent doctor said that one of the curious facts connected with the practice of the cold bath in the morning is that so many of its votaries positively declare that they enjoy it. He contends that they do not and cannot enjoy it. The doctor is doubtless right as far as he goes, but he does not go far enough. He misses the main point, perhaps the only point worth emphasizing.

There is abundant reason to believe that the most curious fact connected with the cold bath in the morning is that so many people who insist that they enjoy it do not take it. There is vicarious atonement, and there is also vicarious bathing, and it is a very easy matter to enjoy a bath that is not taken, the bath of somebody else. Almost anybody gifted with a little imagination can sing the praises of a cold bath in the morning. There are the pleasurable, even delightful, shudders of the first dip and splash, the brisk rub with a coarse crash towel; the warm, healthgiving glow of the new-man feeling, exhilarating, uplifting, as one gets into his attire for the day's work, and, above all, the sense of cleanliness imparted by the cold bath every morning.

And it is equally easy to take a cold bath every morning. It only remains to turn on the hot water faucet and enter the tub. Or both faucets may be turned on and, without entering the tub, one may stir the water violently with his hands, draw long breaths and shiver, not perceptibly, but audibly. It will all sound remarkably lifelike, this performance, wonderfully like taking a cold bath. Even an alert and suspicious sentinel, stationed at the door, his ear delicately attuned to what is going on within, may be readily deceived by the cold bath in the morning.

Contemplate, some broiling August forenoon, the man who tells you that he fairly revels in the cold bath on winter mornings as the gingerly steers his bare feet through the ripples that are lazily lapping the beach at a shore resort, and believe in him and trust him if you can. Watch him advance as if he were going to meet his doom, hesitate, glance shoreward longingly, retreat, immersing himself slowly, reluctantly, inch by inch. Suddenly he remembers that he must wet his head if he would avoid a chill, and he pauses to shampoo his hair in the sad sea waves—this hero of a thousand frigid baths on a thousand frozen mornings!

As a matter of fact, what a man may do alone with his sponge in his bathroom no other man may know, and what he pretends he does may be as "false as dicers' oaths."

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Apples will not turn dark when pared if dropped into water to which lemon juice has been added.

When cooking rabbit always remove the kidney fat and the flavor of the meat will be greatly improved.

For a green omelet mix minced parsley with the beaten egg before turning it into the pan, and then cook without browning.

Instead of stuffing dates with nuts try filling them with cream cheese for an afternoon tea relish. Finely chopped nuts mixed with the cheese is an addition.

When frying croquettes or doughnuts in fat it is well to drop in a small bit of bread when smoke begins to rise. If in about five minutes the bread begins to brown, the fat is ready for use.

Into the pot of boiling mutton drop an onion into which a clove has been stuck, a small carrot and a small bit of bay leaf. If the liquor is to be used for a soup, add a couple of tablespoonfuls of barley.

Things Not to Do at Table.

Erasmus, the old Dutch philosopher and theologian, in his curious essay "On Behavior at Meals," remarks that it is "very rude to blow one's nose on the tablecloth" or to "wipe one's fingers on one's neighbor's coat." He also advises the guest "not to give dogs your bones to crack under the table or feed the cat or encourage animals to jump on the table. This may offend your host or lead to the soiling of his carpet." An admonition that might well be observed in the present day. "Above all," he says, "do not lick your plate. It is an act that ill becomes a cat, let alone a gentleman."

Dogs and Drinking Water.

Who has not at some time or other envied the impunity with which a dog drinks brackish water that no human being dare touch? Civilized communities have solved the problem of a pure water supply so completely that they cannot get on without pure water. Dogs by elimination of those most readily poisoned by bad water have become as a race immune to bad water. In this case the checking of natural selection does not matter, because the supply of good water can probably always be secured.—London Post.

Not Impressed.

Bibliophile (aghast)—I beg your pardon, madam, but that book your little girl is playing with is an old and exceedingly rare first edition. Caller—Oh, that's all right, Mr. Vibbert. It will amuse her just as much as if it were nice and new.

Sunday School Convention

What promises to be the largest convention ever held in Manitoba will meet in the First Baptist Church, Winnipeg, July 2, 3 and 4. The attendance at the annual conventions of the Manitoba Sunday School association has greatly increased during the past four years. Four years ago it was 225, three years ago 425 and last year 750. It is confidently expected that it will go up to 1,200 delegates, outside of Winnipeg.

No less than three outside speakers are to be present: Mrs. J. Woodbridge, Newark, N.J.; Rev. W. C. Merritt, Tacoma, Wash., both of the international staff, and Marshall A. Hudson, Syracuse, N.Y., author of the Barnes and Philathea classes. Besides these, many of the Sunday school experts of the province will take part. The music will be an important feature of the programme. Single fares on all the railway lines will be given. For full information write W. H. Irwin, 511 McIntyre block, Winnipeg.

FAST TRAINS IN ENGLAND

To take only one or two from dozens of examples, the number of daily trains between London and Birmingham (113 miles) over the London & Northwestern making over fifty-six miles an hour is seven; between London and Exeter over the Great Western (194 miles), the number running at a rate over fifty-five miles is four. One of these latter trains makes the 119 miles between London and Bristol in 120 minutes, in each direction, every day, and does this with remarkable regularity and punctuality.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE WEST

A few years ago when a man spoke of the west he meant Manitoba, or possibly Saskatchewan, one or two points then in the North West Territories and no one had any conception of the extent of the era of development that was to arrive.

Today the West means an entirely different thing and the live Canadian manufacturer of Ontario have found it all they can do in some ways to cope with new conditions. An increasing demand every year, however, are extending and devoting more and more attention to Western Canada. The ones who first realized the possibilities of the field are, of course, reaping vast results. Think, though, of one firm, the Mooney Biscuit & Candy Co. of Stratford, who are shipping goods even to a point 1,000 miles north of Edmonton. They say everybody in the West eats Mooney's Biscuits, but they found a few people up there who wanted to and hadn't yet the opportunity.

Upton Sinclair during a recent reunion of Columbia men said that he thought athletics too often exerted a harmful influence on undergraduates.

"When I was in Chicago," Mr. Sinclair said, "making notes for 'The Jungle,' I knew an old lodging-house keeper, and one night the old man said to me, suspiciously:

"'Do you know, I don't believe that there student who has taken the fourth floor back is a student at all.'

"'Why not?' said I.

"'He studies too much,' said the old man."

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

Are Some Customs In Connection With Parliament of Britain.

It is worth knowing, says Answers, that there are six boys who have a right to sit in Parliament, and in the House of Commons, though they cannot take part in the debates or vote, of course. But they have the privilege of claiming seats in the special gallery which is allotted to them, whenever they wish for such, and each day the authorities of the House send down to Westminster School to ask if the "King's Scholars" there desire to use the six seats which are their right, or if not all six, how many. And a list has to be sent by the Clerk of the House from the school, stating the names and positions in school of the scholars who intend to avail themselves of this quaint privilege.

Another curious claim which these Westminster "King's scholars" have the right to make relates to the House of Commons itself, and is always allowed when requested. This is the right to use the Terrace of the House as their strolling place on Sunday afternoons. They may not complain why, on a beautiful summer Sunday, passengers on the river steamers are so often surprised to observe a number of boys, in cap and gown, promenading on the terrace as though it belonged to them.

BLACKS ARE THRIFTY.

Aborigines In Queensland Encouraged to Start Banking Accounts.

Blacks with banking accounts constitute the latest development in Queensland. With a view to the encouragement of thrift, the department in charge of the aborigines in the state is pressing their employers to pay them wages, and at the same time urging on the blacks themselves, both male and female, the importance of banking the money, with the result that most of them have banking accounts. The system was recently inaugurated in connection with the estates of the Garambah aboriginal station, many of whom are employed in clearing and farm work, and already fifty bankbooks show a credit of £150. As far as possible every native boy in the care of the department is being put to work, many of the girls being sent to Brisbane, where they enter domestic service. There are about 120 girls now in Brisbane, and all have banking accounts. The department is also supervising the expenditure of money by sending the lady inspecter with the girls when making purchases.

Adventure at Windsor.

The Prince of Wales had an interesting adventure at Windsor Friday afternoon which incidentally revealed His Royal Highness' kindness of heart.

With the Princess of Wales and Princess Mary he was motoring from Frogmore to Windsor, when, near the entrance to Beaumont College, the royal party came on an overturned carriage, in the wreckage imprisoned beneath it by the fetlock, and a party of four young people standing disconsolately by the roadside. The driver of the trap was mainly endeavoring to release the horse.

Making enquiries, the Prince of Wales ascertained that the party comprised two young London men and their sweethearts, and that they had met with the accident through the horse kicking over the shaft and overturning the trap. The prince took off his overcoat, had the tools taken out of his motor-car, and directed a series of operations designed to release the imprisoned horse and set the trap on its wheels. But the motor tools were not strong enough, and the prince despatched a man to Runnymede Lodge for an axe and a crowbar. When these implements were obtained, the prince, who all this time had remained unrecognized, worked with the driver of the carriage and the chauffeur as would the work of a trained workman, but it was found that the carriage would have to be taken to pieces.

At this moment a soldier rode up on a bicycle, recognized the prince, and imparted to the crowd the fact that the friendly motorist was the Prince of Wales, whereupon a hearty cheer was raised. The prince sent the soldier into Windsor for assistance, gave him half a sovereign, and resumed his interrupted journey.

Fox Jumps Into Cradle.

There was an extraordinary termination to a run with the Duke of Beaufort's hounds recently. The run had been a long one, and they knew that the vixen was almost spent. Suddenly the scent turned abruptly from the open, leading straight into the garden of a cottage in the little village of Castle Combe, Gloucestershire. Those who were following wondered what had happened, and were more astonished still to see the entire pack without a moment's hesitation, dash through the open door into the little room. A shrill scream was heard, and when the whipper-in threw himself from his horse and gained the threshold he saw a sight which probably no foxhunter has ever met before or since. A white-faced woman stood clasping a child in her arms, and right there in the cradle from which the infant had just been snatched, 18 couples of fierce hounds were struggling to devour their fox.

Where the General Was.

Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Knox, who is a thorough-going motorist, tells the following amusing story in The Automobile Owner: "My determination to do everything on the car myself once led to a somewhat funny incident. I was commanding the Fourth Division on Salisbury Plain, when one day a new staff officer joined. On reporting himself he came round by mistake to the back of my house, where my car was. I happened to be underneath it, clad in overalls, making an adjustment. He came up and looked at me, and inquired: 'Can you tell me where the general is?' 'Yes,' I said, 'at the present moment he is underneath this car.' That staff officer's face was a study."

HAD A NASTY BRONCHIAL COUGH

As an After Effect of Pneumonia—Nothing Proved Effective Until we Used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

Many a mother can say, as doesMrs. Harker in the following letter, that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has proven a friend to her in time of colds with the little ones.

Mrs. Walter Harker, Sydenham, Frontenac county, Ont., writes:—"Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has proven a friend to me in times of colds with my little ones. I have tried many others, but have found none just as good. My little boy, about a year old, had pneumonia, and was left with a nasty bronchial cough, but Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is helping him wonderfully, and I am sure it will cure him.

"We have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with splendid results, and have great faith in all of Dr. Chase's medicines."

It may not have occurred to you that both bronchitis and asthma are diseases of the nerves of the bronchial tubes and lungs, and that this is why severe attacks of coughing are brought on whenever these nerves are irritated by changing temperature, the breathing of dust, or emotional excitement.

It is by its remarkable facility for soothing the nerves and sheathing the delicate membranous linings with a protective coating that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has proven so thoroughly effective as a cure for bronchitis and asthma. Its power in these diseases is unquestionable.

Relief from coughing comes almost immediately and by persistent use cure is gradually and certainly brought about.

When the system is greatly run down it is advisable also to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in order to assist in restoring vigor to the wasted nerves.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, family size 60 cents, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Gentlemen—In January last Francis Leclare, one of the men employed by me working in the lumber woods, had a tree fall on him, crushing him fearfully. He was, when found, placed on a sled and taken home, where grave fears were entertained for his recovery, his hips being badly bruised and his body turned black from his ribs to his feet. We used MINARD'S LINIMENT on him freely to deaden the pain, and with the use of three bottles he was completely cured and able to return to his work.

Cut Work Centrepiece in Grape Design

IF you really are a housekeeper by instinct—the true, old-fashioned kind that delights in dainty table appointments—then nothing will give you keener pleasure than a bountiful supply of handsome linen.

Of course, you will want silver, cut-glass and fine china, or their really artistic imitations that can be purchased so reasonably nowadays; but, after all, these things can more or less be classed with the essentials. One must own plates, tumblers and spoons, just as one must have tablecloths and napkins; it is only a question of qualities and quantities. But when one comes to hand-embroidered table appointments—doilies and scarfs, centrepiece and tray-covers—the real lover of pretty table accessories that add so much to the charm of home life has her opportunity.

These things are not indispensable, yet every woman wants them. They give just that indescribable touch that proclaims nicety of taste. Of course, bread or cake without its underlying dainty doily may taste delicious, but no one would ever think of being so served by the really particular house mistress.

Completed Centrepiece.

Centrepieces, also, in the strict definition of the word, are not necessary, but they add much to the beauty and the artistic appearance of one's table.

A clever, hardworking woman, whose income was small, was chided by a friend for "setting so fine a table, quite beyond your means." But the mother, though wisely not attempting to convince her friend, went on using the dainty centrepieces and plate doilies made at odd moments of leisure, that saved table linen and laundry bills, and that above all brought the refining influence of beauty into the lives of growing children.

Naturally, to buy embroidered table linen is beyond the power of the average homemaker, however much her soul may revel in rare drawnwork or fine hand embroidery. But it is perfectly possible to have these things, none the less, for there are but few women or even young girls who cannot learn to do at least simple fancywork if they have the desire.

It is not necessary to take an extensive course of lessons or indulge in costly materials to have really lovely embroidery for one's home. Take a centrepiece such as the one shown today, for instance. It looks elaborate, and is, indeed, an unusually handsome design, yet it can be easily worked by the woman who has had a little experience in artistic needlework and who is willing to be painstaking.

The stitches are not at all complicated—a close buttonhole, satin stitch and a cording or fine French stem stitch. Any one can do them with a little practice, yet the result is a remarkably handsome centrepiece.

The design admits of several treatments. As seen in the picture, the scallops, grapes, leaves and circular stems are first heavily and smoothly padded with darning cotton. This is most rapidly done by using all the strands and filling in with a chain stitch. Use a needle with a large eye and be careful not to draw the fin-n.

Buttonhole the scallop. Put in each stitch at right angles to yourself to give the proper slant and keep the inner edge even.

The grapes and central stem, also heavily padded, are worked in a smooth satin stitch. The tendrils and fine inner line of the border are done either in the tiny over-and-over stitch, which is such a characteristic of the exquisite French embroidery, or it can be done in a cording stitch. The latter is worked by following the stamping with a close running stitch, and then catching another thread underneath each stitch.

Before padding the grape leaves, work the veins in the fine over-and-over stitch. Then fill in the rest of the leaf with the darning cotton and cover with a satin stitch. Follow the outline of the leaves and work to the veins.

This treatment gives a very solid and rich effect. The centrepiece can be made much more open and airy looking by doing the grapes in the eyelet work and filling in the centre of the leaves with a close meshed filet net.

The grapes should be cut, rather than clipped, the edges rolled back to form a perfect circle, a thread run around them and the edges then worked over and over. As the opening is rather large, a somewhat heavier edge will be more effective than the narrow line which is usually demanded for eyelet embroidery.

Baste the filet firmly and smoothly over the leaves, sewing on the outer edge. Then pad the outline with a single row of chain stitch and buttonhole closely over it with the twist to the outside of the leaf. Put in the veining with a cording or satin stitch over the filet, and, when finished, carefully cut away the linen underneath.

The stems, tendrils and scallops are worked as in the other treatment.

This design is charming for under a punch bowl, or, indeed, for ordinary table use, when worked in natural colors, either on a white linen or on a pale tan art linen.

When done in colors, chose rich purples of at least four tones, and soft harmonious greens, not the crude shades so often seen. Use silks, or a Turkish floss. Work the edge in either green or purple, in a medium shade, as white embroidery silk soon turns yellow.

In developing the centrepiece in color work the solid embroidery, which gives room for artistic shading, will be found more satisfactory than the cut-work. The design, by its very richness, even permits of the whole thing being done in a simple outline stitch. Or the grapes might have a row or two of outlining and the leaves be worked in long and short stitch with corded veining.

The Globe finds fault with the town officials, charging partiality in the matter of requiring protection for building excavations in block 5. Among other things the Globe states that "the excavation for the Adelphi Hotel has been allowed to stand unprotected for some ten months." The town officials say Editor Halpin's optics are sadly in need of a pair of glasses, as the Adelphi excavation was properly protected by fence all winter and spring.

Fined for Running a Gambling Device.

Last Friday, on an information laid by Constable Webster, a man named Buller who had opened up a gambling device in a room in the Victoria Hotel was placed under arrest. On Saturday he was brought to trial before Justice of the Peace Butcher and fined $50 and costs.

Another information was laid against the proprietor of the hotel for permitting Buller to operate in his house. The trial took place Saturday evening, and he also was fined $50 and costs.

Some appear to feel disposed to find fault with the constable in this matter, claiming that there were other gamblers operating in the town on that day and that they also should have been "pulled." The constable denies knowledge of the cases mentioned, and we have no reason to doubt his sincerity in this matter.

Through the courtesy of the Western Globe we present this week a cut of Lacombe's new school building as it will appear when finished, as shown by the architect's drawings.

Hence the event has been postponed till the close of the summer school holidays. The date has been set so far in the future in order that all school pupils may participate in the ceremony.
